Indiana can’t afford to let Amtrak derail conversations

Income level, not race, breeds criminality

There has been a lot of mur- der, poverty and neglect in Indiana recently. We talk about how many crimes in the city are committed by ‘black’ or ‘Hispanic’ Americans and Hispanics. I wonder why do we approach crimes as a race problem, and more as a socioeconomic education level, it will be fixed. We are told to better equip our communities, why do we approach crimes as a race problem, and more as a socioeconomic education level, it will be fixed. We are told to better equip our communities.

Example: to say “96 percent of the people incarcerated in Indiana’s correctional facilities are African-Americans and Hispanic-Americans.”

There are 56 percent more male African-Americans and Hispanic-Americans than non-Hispanic white men in Indiana. We talk about how many crimes in the city are committed by ‘black’ or ‘Hispanic’ Americans and Hispanics. I wonder why do we approach crimes as a race problem, and more as a socioeconomic education level, it will be fixed. We are told to better equip our communities, why do we approach crimes as a race problem, and more as a socioeconomic education level, it will be fixed. We are told to better equip our communities.

Example: to say “96 percent of the people incarcerated in Indiana’s correctional facilities are African-Americans and Hispanic-Americans.”

There are 56 percent more male African-Americans and Hispanic-Americans than non-Hispanic white men in Indiana. We talk about how many crimes in the city are committed by ‘black’ or ‘Hispanic’ Americans and Hispanics. I wonder why do we approach crimes as a race problem, and more as a socioeconomic education level, it will be fixed. We are told to better equip our communities, why do we approach crimes as a race problem, and more as a socioeconomic education level, it will be fixed. We are told to better equip our communities.

Example: to say “96 percent of the people incarcerated in Indiana’s correctional facilities are African-Americans and Hispanic-Americans.”

There are 56 percent more male African-Americans and Hispanic-Americans than non-Hispanic white men in Indiana. We talk about how many crimes in the city are committed by ‘black’ or ‘Hispanic’ Americans and Hispanics. I wonder why do we approach crimes as a race problem, and more as a socioeconomic education level, it will be fixed. We are told to better equip our communities, why do we approach crimes as a race problem, and more as a socioeconomic education level, it will be fixed. We are told to better equip our communities.

Example: to say “96 percent of the people incarcerated in Indiana’s correctional facilities are African-Americans and Hispanic-Americans.”

There are 56 percent more male African-Americans and Hispanic-Americans than non-Hispanic white men in Indiana. We talk about how many crimes in the city are committed by ‘black’ or ‘Hispanic’ Americans and Hispanics. I wonder why do we approach crimes as a race problem, and more as a socioeconomic education level, it will be fixed. We are told to better equip our communities, why do we approach crimes as a race problem, and more as a socioeconomic education level, it will be fixed. We are told to better equip our communities.

Example: to say “96 percent of the people incarcerated in Indiana’s correctional facilities are African-Americans and Hispanic-Americans.”

There are 56 percent more male African-Americans and Hispanic-Americans than non-Hispanic white men in Indiana. We talk about how many crimes in the city are committed by ‘black’ or ‘Hispanic’ Americans and Hispanics. I wonder why do we approach crimes as a race problem, and more as a socioeconomic education level, it will be fixed. We are told to better equip our communities, why do we approach crimes as a race problem, and more as a socioeconomic education level, it will be fixed. We are told to better equip our communities.

Example: to say “96 percent of the people incarcerated in Indiana’s correctional facilities are African-Americans and Hispanic-Americans.”

There are 56 percent more male African-Americans and Hispanic-Americans than non-Hispanic white men in Indiana. We talk about how many crimes in the city are committed by ‘black’ or ‘Hispanic’ Americans and Hispanics. I wonder why do we approach crimes as a race problem, and more as a socioeconomic education level, it will be fixed. We are told to better equip our communities, why do we approach crimes as a race problem, and more as a socioeconomic education level, it will be fixed. We are told to better equip our communities.

Example: to say “96 percent of the people incarcerated in Indiana’s correctional facilities are African-Americans and Hispanic-Americans.”

There are 56 percent more male African-Americans and Hispanic-Americans than non-Hispanic white men in Indiana. We talk about how many crimes in the city are committed by ‘black’ or ‘Hispanic’ Americans and Hispanics. I wonder why do we approach crimes as a race problem, and more as a socioeconomic education level, it will be fixed. We are told to better equip our communities, why do we approach crimes as a race problem, and more as a socioeconomic education level, it will be fixed. We are told to better equip our communities.